

Press release distribution

Press releases can be sent to appropriate members of the press, posted on your blog or business site and distributed through numerous online sites. Press releases are documents containing newsworthy information that is of interest to particular audiences. Please see the templates for special guests and topics provided.

Web sites

Many of the following sites have free distribution services (some may require a wait time of 24-48 hours), but they all offer various paid options as well. Visit each and decide which fits your needs. Posting to sites gets your news into search engine results.
